ABSTRACT

Irony is one of the most powerful elements in The Known World, a novel written by Edward P. Jones. It is present in almost all parts of the novel, that analyzing it is paramount in understanding what the author tries to convey.

The problems analyzed in this thesis are how the characters who depict the irony illustrate the irony itself and what the function of the irony is. The goals are to identify the characters that illustrate the ironies in the novel, to examine the illustrated ironies, and to reveal the significant function of the ironies.

To analyze the irony, an understanding of characters involved is necessary. The characters are then divided into flat and round characters to give in-depth explanation. By analyzing the characters, three kinds of irony are found; dramatic irony, irony of situation, and irony of fate.

Henry Townsend, William Robbins, Fern Elston are some of the characters who portray the irony through their actions, utterances, and author's description. Edward P. Jones uses irony to criticize the slavery conducted by African American. They enslaved their own people. He also reveals the flaws of law and the wrong function of religion back then.

In conclusion, after analyzing and elaborating the characters and ironies used, the law and social condition in Manchester County, Virginia during eighteenth to nineteenth century can be visibly perceived. Moreover, it gives additional understanding on the complexity of slavery.

I would like to thank God for giving me power, ability and motivation to finish this thesis. Thanks for His grace, blessings and mercy. His love is like a river that runs through my heart and soul, deep when I am thirsty and warm when I am cold. God also gives me peace in mind time after time. He gives me everything and even more.

First I would like to give a great appreciation to the Dean of Faculty of Letters, Ibu Dra. Ienneke Indra Dewi, M.Hum. From her, I learnt a lot about the way of a lecturer. Special thanks go to the person who has given a great contribution throughout my study; Ibu Dra. Wiwik Andreani, the Head of English Department, for helping me arrange my schedule since the beginning of my study. Without her help, I would not have my chances to have part-time jobs, and to have graduated on time.

Next, biggest thank goes to my mentor who is now the Secretary of English Department, Tety Mindaria Maiatu, S.S., M.Hum. Her dedication to the university outshines everything she has and; thus, worth attention and appraisals. With all the things she is required to do as a secretary, she still manages her time to guide thirteen students under her supervision. Thank you very much for the patience, understanding and guidance when dealing with us. I hope the job is enjoyable and, whenever it's over, new great positions and opportunities await.

Sincere and deep thanks to the lecturers; Ibu Tjoa Hang Sing and Mr. Wisnoebroto for having given necessary guidance for my thesis. The greatest and most special thanks go to Mr. Aka who has been a great literature lecturer. Through his eyes, the writer can see small possibilities converted to great opportunities. Through his guidance also, the writer could finish his study.

Another big gratitude goes to my older sister, Lenny. Thank you for the financial support through all times. Without you, I will never be the person I am today and will never get the chance of having a better education.

To my school friends Antony, Ardianto, Rahmat, Herru, you have my appreciation for the help; the recommendation of choosing the right notebook and sarcastic critique for my thesis. Your words, supports and achievements inspire me. To my colleagues: Johannes B. W., Karina Wulandari, Stephannie, Cathleya, Dimas, Diana, thank you guys for answering the questions and giving new perspective for my thesis. Further thanks go to both of my motherly colleagues; Diana Puspasari and Lidya. I have been very fortunate and blessed to receive your love and affection. Nothing can be compared with what you guys have done since the third semester. Your presence has changed my life and everything you have said or done have made me see life from a different angle and; therefore, added a meaningful value to my life.

Finally, my appreciation goes to the people who might have not been mentioned yet, but have given either direct or indirect, great contributions to complete the thesis. Thank you for the support and all your prayers all the time.
