Wherever two languages are in contact in one bilingual or multilingual community, it is code switching. It is a common linguistic phenomenon that occurs among bilingual or multilingual community. However many people out there do not perceive code switching as a positive trait. It happens because they maybe do not know what the types and the functions of code switching are. So, the aim of this study is to explore the types and the functional approaches of code switching that occur on conversation in MasterChef Indonesia season 2. In this research, the writer uses two research methods which are library research and qualitative research. The result shows that types of code switching that used the most is inter-sentential code switching, and the functions of code switching that used the most is to specify an addressee as the recipient of the message.

Keywords: Code Switching, Types, Functions, Bilingual, Multilingual, MasterChef Indonesia Season 2